Biography: Robert Newton Hurley (1894-1980) was an artist widely known for his watercolour prairie landscapes. Hurley was born in London, England. He immigrated to Canada in 1923 and lived in Saskatoon (1930-1963) and Victoria (1963-1980). He was mainly a self-taught painter but did study briefly under Ernest Lindner. In Saskatoon he worked as a plant technician with the Dominion Plant Pathology Laboratory on the University of Saskatchewan campus alongside Dr. Ralph C. Russell. Hurley and Russell made many field excursions across the prairies. Russell (1897-1964) was married to Grace and the father to Ruth (m. Geoffrey Walker) and Lorna Russell.
